

Higher Education Opportunity Act: An Overview of Campus Safety Requirements

A Free Webinar
September 15, 2010

12 noon - 1 PM
(Eastern Daylight Time)

If you do not wish to continue receiving invitations to the SimplexGrinnell Learn from the Leader Webinar Series, please email Chris Woodcock, Director of Marketing Communications, at chwoodcock@simplexgrinnell.com

© 2010 SimplexGrinnell LP.
Tyco, SimplexGrinnell and Be Safe are trademarks of Tyco International Services AG or its affiliates or subsidiaries.

Higher Education Opportunity Act: An Overview of Campus Safety Requirements

The Higher Education Opportunity Act (HEOA) lays out campus safety requirements for colleges and universities in a number of critical areas, including fire safety and emergency response and evacuation. While the law was enacted in August 2008, the deadlines for some key reporting requirements are now approaching. By October 1, 2010, institutions must include in their Annual Security Report a statement of policy regarding emergency response and evacuation procedures. Institutions that maintain on-campus student housing must also publish an Annual Fire Safety Report that includes fire statistics and describes fire safety policies, practices and systems. This free webinar will provide an overview of campus safety requirements in the Higher Education Opportunity Act and explore compliance efforts and practices.

Click here to register.

You'll learn:

- The fire safety and emergency response and evacuation components of the Higher Education Opportunity Act
- The associated regulations issued by the U.S. Department of Education
- Resources available to colleges and universities
- Best-practice examples of the ways several campuses are complying with the new requirements

A Certificate of Attendance Will Be Issued to All Participants

Meet Your Presenter:

Paul D. Martin is the president of the Center for Campus Fire Safety (CCFS) and chief of the Bureau of Fire Prevention with the New York State Office of Fire Prevention and Control. Knowledgeable and highly respected, he has over three decades of experience in the fire service. In his role with CCFS, he leads the only national, non-profit, organization devoted to reducing fires at campuses across the nation through education and advocacy. Paul served as member of the negotiated rule making committee for the U.S. Department of Education, which developed the regulations associated with the Campus Fire Safety Right-to-Know Act. He is active on a multitude of industry boards and committees, including Prevention, Advocacy, Resource and Data Exchange (PARADE), a program of the United States Fire Administration; National Association of State Fire Marshals; and the International Building Code - Means of Egress Committee for the International Code Council.